

3 concentration of a second dopant and the junction region separating the first doped region from the 4 second well, wherein forming a protection circuit includes forming a third doped region in the 5 second well adjacent the junction region, the third doped region doped with a second concentration 6 of the second dopant.
